

MITCHELL FAVORS
NICARAGUA ROUTEPanama Canal Company the Most Corrupt in World's History.

DEPEW ASKS FOREST RESERVE

CANAL WOULD PROTECT SHIP-PERS FROM MONOPOLY.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—After transacting some routine business and discussing for a time the bill to relieve shippers from the London dock charges, the senate resumed consideration today of the isthmian canal project.

Mr. Mitchell of Oregon continued his speech begun Thursday in opposition to the Panama route. After continuing the engineering difficulties of the route, which he regarded as very serious, he entered upon a denunciation of the methods of the Panama canal company, which he declared, was the most corrupt in the history of the world.

He warned congress that no surer way could be found to develop the resources of any canal than to adopt the Panama route, as the United States could have no connection with the Panama route without becoming involved in the intricacies of the French adventure, from which it is impossible to extricate itself. He declared that any connection this country might have with the Panama proposition would result in the detriment of the government.

Depew Asks Appropriation.

At the conclusion of routine business today, Mr. Depew resumed the second day of the bill appropriating $10,000,000 for the purchase of 2,000,000 acres of land for a national forest reserve in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee. Mr. Depew said the project was favored by President Roosevelt and by the secretary of agriculture, and federal action was justified fully by public necessity. He said that within ten years the great hardwood forests within the reserve would be destroyed entirely. Such a result would be disastrous to the states affected and to the entire country.

At the conclusion of Mr. Depew's remarks, Mr. Hale said that the senate could not fail to be impressed by the great importance of the subject. He had not been aware of the extent of the destruction of the forests, but he thought some action ought to be taken upon the matter at this session.

The senate then began the consideration of the measure commonly known as the London dock charges bill. Mr. Nelson of Minnesota, in support of the bill, said the charges made at the London docks against American ships, principally, were a discrimination against the United States. He said that the bill would have the effect of the elimination of the London dock charges, that the freight rates would not be increased. Mr. Nelson said that there was no guaranty and could be none.

The shippers would have to take their chances on that. The shipping trust organized by J. P. Morgan, he said, might raise the freight charges. That was not to be prevented by the pending bill.

"God deliver us from trusts," declared Mr. Nelson. "That is a matter which we will have to take care of later on."

He said he had referred inadvertently to the isthmian canal commission as "Hanna's commission," and that he had not intended to reflect upon Mr. Hanna or upon the commission.

Protection Against Morgan Combine.

The bill, he said, was for the purpose of protecting the American manufacturer, the American producer and the American farmer, which protection was based on the fact that the Morgan combine of the shipping combine by Mr. Morgan. As the situation is, said he, the American shippers are in the clutches of a devil-fish of a monopoly, from which we ought to get away, even before going to bed to be delivered. The bill then was laid aside.

Hills were passed as follows: To amend act No. 45 of the Twenty-first congress, declining the Oregon river, to be navigable stream above the point where the line between the counties of Benton and St. Clair, Missouri, crosses the river.

At 2 o'clock consideration of the isthmian canal project was resumed. Mr. Mitchell of Oregon addressing the senate in continuation of his speech began Thursday in support of the Nicaragua route. He said he had referred inadvertently to the isthmian canal commission as "Hanna's commission," and that he had not intended to reflect upon Mr. Hanna or upon the commission.

Strongly Advocates Nicaragua Route.

Discussing at length the route of the canal commission, he pointed out that the Nicaragua route, after examining all routes, was the most feasible, practicable, and that the report was conclusively in favor of the Nicaragua route. He said the commission had changed its mind within a month, solely on the ground of cost. He insisted that the facts presented by the commission were not sufficient to justify the change of mind. He said that the real choice of the route was through Nicaragua, and that the commission had been misled by the Panama route, quoting eminent engineers as saying that the Panama route was not feasible, and that the Nicaragua route was the only one that could be built.

He could not believe, he said, that the senate would consider seriously a proposition which would involve the United States in a legal controversy for 10 years. I want the senate to know the facts and to determine whether we really shall take up this rotten concern over the sea?

Sponser Amendment Means Delay.

Mr. Mitchell expressed the opinion that the enactment of the Sponser amendment would result in the postponement of the beginning of the canal project, as the president probably would have to make an independent investigation of the subject before he could pass on it. He urged congress to assume the responsibility of selecting the route and not turn that responsibility over to the president.

He admitted that the transfer of such responsibility could be made, but he emphatically denied that it was either wise or proper, and intimated that such action would be taken if the United States should adopt the Panama route some other nation would construct a canal by the Nicaragua route, thus creating competition that would be disastrous to the United States.

Mr. Mitchell denounced the idea that the United States should lend its name to the Panama canal enterprise whose history during the last ten years had shocked the sensibilities of mankind. He declared that it was the "most rapacious scheme of legislative corruption, journalistic venality and social and political exposure ever uncovered in any age or country."

COMING BY TRAINLOADS.

Looks Like Elk Crowd Will Be Bigger Than at First Expected.

Every day the committee in charge of the Elks' convention here is receiving information from the various lodges over the country, indicating that crowds larger than was first expected are going to flock to this city during the first week in August. The information indicates that from every state in the Union, almost, Elks will come by the trainloads.

C. R. Evans of Leeds, S. D., was in the city yesterday and stated that a special trainload from his state would arrive here two days before the opening day of the convention. They will be accompanied by the First regiment band of Fargo, and several other musical organizations of the state. Eugene L. Lewis of Cincinnati stated that a special train of five sleepers would come from that place and the famous Weber band would accompany the delegation.

Information has been received to the effect that Al G. Field, the celebrated minstrel man, has tendered the use of his special train to the Columbus, O., Elks. In connection with the convention, Dunlap conducted a loan agency, and was said to have been a silent partner in several pawnshops from which he derived a large income. The amount of his fortune is not known, as the will just filed mentions only the sum of $5,000 to be used in missionary work.

Administrator Looking for Someone to Give the Money To.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 7.—A fortune of $142,000 in cash, the heirs of an old man who passed under the name of Charles Hill, and who died at the Good Samaritan hospital two weeks ago.

About three weeks ago the man, who was between 75 and 80 years of age, applied at the hospital for accommodations. He was taken in and paid for all the services rendered. When it was found that he could not recover, he was asked to tell the names of his relatives in order that they might be notified. He replied that he had no relative on earth. He died and was duly buried. His clothing worth $2,000 in currency. Further investigation by the public administrator disclosed a key to a private box at the Union Bank of Savings. The box has just been opened and in it were found several large bags of currency, aggregating $140,000.

The old man had lived here seven years in a modest sort of way at lodging houses and restaurants, but had no intimates and no one can be found who knows anything of his antecedents.

ed by changing the meeting nights to Mondays.

The question now raised is that an ordinance cannot be amended by adopting a resolution. Yesterday Assistant City Attorney Shoup was looking up the question and he had gone so far as to say that it appeared to him that the changing of meeting time was done illegally, thereby seriously affecting the validity of the last meeting held.

Last night councilmen were divided as to whether to call Monday night's meeting a regular session, but the weight of opinion was that a regular meeting would have to be held Tuesday night, at which time, besides going through all of last Wednesday night's proceedings, it will be necessary to enact an ordinance to make effective the change of meeting time, as contemplated in the resolutions passed.

A FINE COLLECTION.

Exhibition Here of Pictures of Distinguished Artists.

William Morris, the well known collector and art critic, has brought a notable collection of paintings to this city and will have them on exhibition for the public at Walker's store on Tuesday. The artist represented includes both Americans and Europeans of distinction, and the subjects chosen are regarded as of exceptional interest.

One of the paintings by William Hahn will appeal particularly to art lovers here. It's title is, "Struck It at Last," a figure of a miner who has finally achieved the dream of his life and found rich ore. The exultant expression and pose of triumph tell the story most effectively and the light and shade are distributed admirably.

Valencia, the Spanish painter, who is attracting much attention in the art world, is represented by a number of fine sea coast and mission studies; H. Hanson, who is noted for his pictures of frontier life, has three pictures; "A Forest Pool," by J. Clifford Cowles, is regarded as one of the best forest scenes ever painted by an American artist. "Stealing," a Holland artist, contributes a picture of sheep; Treddup has two fine examples of moonlight pictures; H. C. Best has an evening scene, and William Keith a beautiful meadow scene. Art lovers and the public generally are invited to visit the collection.

HOPE TO ARBITRATE.

Federation of Labor Has No Idea of Calling a Big Strike.

The members of the Federation of Labor hope that they may be able to arbitrate and settle the difficulty between the cooks and waiters and the restaurant proprietors. They say they are not in favor of strikes and difficulties of a like nature and
